

ANA To Launch Narita-Jakarta and Narita-Manila Routes

~ANA expands its Southeast Asian network~

~Nagoya-Shanghai route to be suspended~

TOKYO August 6, 2010 - ANA announced its decision to launch two new international routes from Narita next year, resuming the Narita-Jakarta route from January 2011, and inaugurating the Narita-Manila route in March 2011.

This route expansion will strengthen ANA's Southeast Asia network. ANA currently operates flights from Narita to Bangkok, Singapore and Ho-Chi-Min City and recently announced the launch of two additional services from Haneda to Bangkok and Singapore which will start in October. With the announcement of these two new routes, ANA will operate a total of nine daily flights that service seven routes to five Southeast Asia destinations. This network will provide an increase in the number of choices available to passengers traveling between Japan and Southeast Asian destinations and will improve the convenience of transit passengers connecting at Narita to routes to and from North America.

ANA also announced that, due to the adjustments of the take-off and landing slots in the timetable for winter 2010, it will suspend its Nagoya (Chubu)-Shanghai (Pudong) route from October 31, 2010.

ANA will continue to improve its network for the advantage and satisfaction of its valued customers.

Details of the services are as follows:

Route	Start	Current		New		Remarks
		Aircraft type	Frequency	Aircraft type	Frequency
Narita-Jakarta	January 2011			767-300ER	7/ week	Resumption of service
Narita-Manila	March 2011			767-300ER	7/week	New service
Nagoya (Chubu)-Shanghai (Pudong)	October 31, 2010	A320-200	7/week			Service suspended

* Subject to approval by relevant authorities

Contact: ANA Public Relations TEL +81-(0)3-6735-1111