

ANA to start daily service on Narita Hangzhou route from January

TOKYO December 20, 2011 - ANA, Japan's largest airline, today announces that it will increase the frequency of flights on its Narita-Hangzhou route starting January 20, 2012, to meet growing market demand. Currently, ANA flies four times a week between the two cities with the Airbus 320. This will become a daily service from January 20 to March 24.

The increase in frequency is in response to strong passenger demand for more flights to Hangzhou.
