

Notice for Passengers from NH931

Thank you for flying with ANA.

Please kindly read through the instructions below.

According to the announcement issued by the Embassy of the People's Republic of China in Japan on November 27, 2020, starting from December 1, 2020, all Chinese and foreign passengers who are to fly from Japan to China will be required to take nucleic acid and IgM antibody tests within two days (based on the date of tests) before boarding and then apply for a green health code with the "HS" mark or a green health declaration code with the "HDC" mark before boarding the flight. Please be aware flight passengers from Japan to China will not be allowed to board the planes directly with the standardized negative test certificates.

Upon arrival at Shenzhen Airport, Passengers need to wait inside the aircraft and in the designated quarantine area for temperature measurement and health condition check. All inbound passengers are requested to fill out the "Health Declaration for Exit/Entry Passengers" in advance and show the QR code to the quarantine officers.

All passengers will be required to quarantine at government designated facilities for 14 days upon arrival in Shenzhen. Please kindly note that all expenses including the cost of accommodation and meals incurred during the quarantine period will be borne by the passengers themselves.

Thank you for your understanding and kind cooperation.
